

Franchises are very particular about how the business is structured and a partner can sometimes be problematic. The brands we represent are very popular and receive a high volume of inquiries daily. Franchisors prefer to explain the business model to all partners from the outset which will save everyone a lot of time.

If you plan to have a partner who is a “financial” partner, please have the partner submit the profile/NDA with yours as well. Every franchise we work with will need to speak to all partners and all will need to meet the financial qualifications either individually or with your combined qualifications.

If the partner will only be working with you in the company then there is no need to supply his or her profile/NDA at this time.

If you will be the sole financial partner, but will have someone else act as a full-time manager of the business, then you will need to submit their qualifications as well which will save everyone a lot of time.
